Investment approach

GLG Asia (ex-Japan) Equity Strategy

A bottom-up long-only strategy focused on the Asia (ex-Japan) region

Investment philosophy

Fundamental

Bottom-up analysis focused on relative earnings revisions

Concentrated

High conviction all-cap portfolio with preference for mid-caps

Flexible

Style agnostic with flexibility to shift in/out of styles

Fundamental: relative earnings revisions

Historical evidence suggests that the key driver of beta in Asia (ex-Japan) is earnings and markets in the region have consistently traded in-line with forward EPS. Alpha, on the other hand, tends to be driven by high cross-sectional single stock dispersion and relative earnings revisions.

Accordingly, the team's core focus is to capture turning points in companies that have high EPS revision potential over a forecast period of up to 12-18 months.

Concentrated: high conviction portfolio

The team runs a high conviction all-cap portfolio with a preference for mid-caps. The portfolio is composed of approximately 35-45 positions with an active share above 70% while active risk sits between 4-8%. While the Fund shares certain characteristics with its benchmark, the Fund's highly active and style agnostic approach means there will be deviation at times. It is expected though that both country and sector exposure will be +/- 20% of the benchmark.

Flexible: top-down macro analysis shapes portfolio tilts

In addition to its bottom up approach, the team will overlay various deliberate and diversified top down macro views to achieve "through the cycle" alpha.

The investment process aims to identify the type of macro environment (such as high/ low/ stable, accelerating or decelerating real and nominal GDP growth) and possible future changes to it to understand how various countries, industries or investment styles will perform. In particular, the team focuses on factors such as growth, value, quality, volatility and momentum.

The portfolio is then constructed to ensure those favourably exposed countries, industries or investment styles are overweighted relative to the benchmark.

EARNINGS REVISION FORECASTING

A differentiator from more quantitative, signal based strategies

Computers excel at:

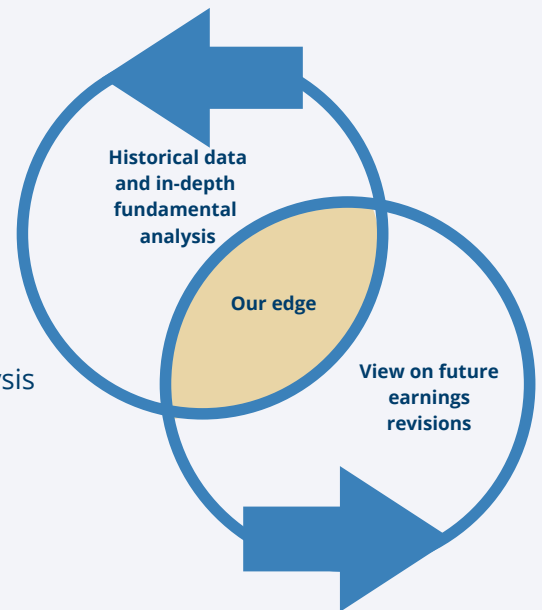

- Extrapolating short-term predictions from historical data
- Rapidly processing vast amounts of data

Computers are less proficient at:

- Interpreting macro changes or management moves
- Forecasting over the longer term

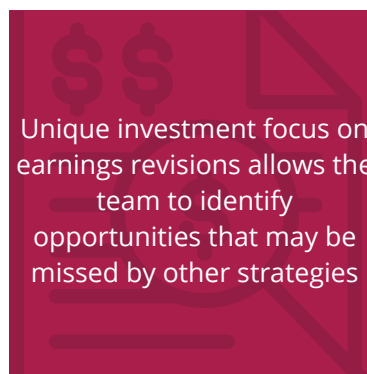

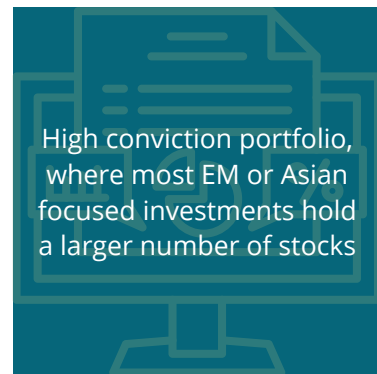

The team assumes risk based on future earnings revisions views

- Decisions based on both historical data and forward looking analysis
- In-depth bottom-up analysis and management meetings shape forward views
- Top-town macro views tilt portfolio towards in-favour:
 - Styles
 - Sectors
 - Countries
